

Client Announcement

12 February 2009

Dear Colleagues:

We are excited and pleased to inform you that Z-Seis has become part of Schlumberger, effective 12 February 2009.

Over the last 10 years, Z-Seis has developed the technology to become the leader in the Crosswell Seismic business.

Through this acquisition Schlumberger is committed to continuing development of the Z-Seis technology to maintain its leadership position. We will also leverage the global Schlumberger organization to provide local support to our customers wherever they need to use the Z-Seis technology and expertise.

Crosswell Seismic will be a key addition to Schlumberger's Deep Reading portfolio which focuses on providing clients reservoir solutions in the interwell space. Z-Seis will become part of the Deep Reading organization, which in turn reports to the Schlumberger Wireline product line.

Z-Seis will continue to operate with the same team and commitment to service. We will keep the Z-Seis headquarters in Houston and Bruce Marion will continue as General Manager.

We are confident that our combined scope, resources, and expertise will provide enhanced Deep Reading products and services to meet your reservoir challenges in the interwell space. Please contact either of us or your local Schlumberger representative for more information.

Best Regards,

Colin Hulme
Technical Director Deep Reading
Schlumberger Wireline
hulme2@slb.com

Bruce Marion
General Manager
Z-Seis, a Schlumberger company
bmarion@z-seis.com